

129. Review of order

Where an order has been made for the payment by a bankrupt, or by his employer for the time being, of a portion of his income or salary (including any bonus or commission payable to him), the bankrupt may, upon his ceasing to receive a salary or income of the amount he received when the order was made, apply to the court to rescind the order or to reduce the amount ordered to be paid by him to the trustee. And in the case of any increase in the amount of such salary, or income (inclusive of any bonus or commission as aforesaid) the trustee may in like manner apply to the court to increase the amount ordered to be paid by the bankrupt to the trustee.
